

I don't want unsolicited calls, whether from knowns or unknowns. I have opted out of e-mail, and telemarketing when given the choice. I decide who my information should go to and not.

Don't undo my choices and silence my voice because big business doesn't want to ask me my choice and wants to distribute my name and number freely at it's discretion.

Just because I have business with them, doesn't mean I want to give their subsidiaries, their joint ventures or their associates my information. They should have to ask, each and every time a new relationship is formed, and should have to request permission from me, not grant it carte blanche and make me call them to refuse.
